esearch Bureau Says Partisan Antagonisms Must Be Set Aside

CITES PUBLIC'S RIGHTS

The public has a right to expect that Council will set aside partisan antagoalsms on the municipal street cleaning e and aid the Public Works Department to begin this work on a city-wide scale by January 1, the Bureau of Municipal Research said today.

After reviewing the Administration's efforts to have municipal street cleaning started by October 1, and the shifting tactics of the Council majority in ing tactics of the Council majority in successfully opposing that move, the bureau continued:

"The resolution passed at the special meeting of Council June 29 promises support to a full program of municipal work after existing contracts expire on December 31. Certainly no serious objection could be raised to the passage of this resolution, which marks the first time in the eighteen months' operation of the new charter that Council has committed itself to full munici-Il has committed itself to full munici-

"The resolution states that Council stands ready to aid the Department of Public Works to inaugurate municipal street cleaning throughout the city on January 1 and will remain in session all summer, if necessary, to provide the needed funds. The Director of Public Works is directed to present his plans at the earliest possible date for approval by Council.

'The majority in Council who have The majority in Council who have taken upon themselves the responsibility of setting aside the plan of the Administration for full municipal work on October 1 are in duty bound and should be held strictly to their pledge by the citizens of Philadelphia to aid the Department of Public Works promptly and effectively to start the work on January 1.
